III Project Introduction
19	Please describe the project and your targeted users with one sentence.	AI sentiment tracker for web3 investors
20	Features: What are the pain-points that the project is trying to solve? (Please briefly describe the technical characteristics of the project and its business model features.)

1. Information Overload & Signal Noise:

The Web3 space is flooded with unstructured data: tweets, Discord chats, Telegram groups, Reddit threads, news, etc.

Investors struggle to filter through the noise to understand true market sentiment.

2. Volatility and Speculation:

Crypto markets are highly reactive to sentiment shifts. Traditional metrics (like trading volume or market cap) lag behind emotional market triggers.

Investors lack tools to anticipate FUD (Fear, Uncertainty, Doubt) or FOMO (Fear of Missing Out) trends early.

3. Manual Research is Time-Consuming:

Professional investors and analysts spend hours manually aggregating community sentiment, reading whitepapers, and scanning social platforms.

This is inefficient and can lead to missed opportunities or poor risk assessment.

4. Lack of Granular Sentiment by Project or Token:

Existing tools often provide generic market mood (e.g., “Greed” or “Fear” indexes) but not project-specific sentiment across multiple platforms.

Investors want token-by-token, community-by-community insights.

5. Difficulty Predicting Retail Behavior:

Retail investors drive much of the Web3 market. Tracking and predicting their behavior through sentiment trends can be highly profitable but difficult without AI-powered analytics.
